Where do linguistic universals come from?

A brief history of the relation between biopsychogenetic sciences and linguistics, followed by speculative prognostications on the near and far term unification of the language sciences. Empirical examples of current programmatic work will be included.